Emil Kraus named Citizen of the Year

by Dan Sanderson Staff Writer

A Grayling businessman who served the community in just about every conceivable capacity was honored last week.

Emil Kraus was presented the 2004 Citizen of the Year award at the Grayling Regional Chamber of Commerce annual Awards Night last Thursday.

"I am proud and honored," Kraus said about the recognition.

Kraus was born in Grayling in 1917. He graduated from Grayling High School in 1934 and was the president of his class. Kraus attended the University of Detroit, where he was also the president of his class. He then earned his law degree from the University of Michigan.

Kraus began his law career working for the Massachusetts Bond and Insurance Company in Detroit. He held that job for about a year, then enlisted in the military. Kraus graduated from the United States Coast Guard in 1942, and served as an executive officer on the Coast Guard Cutter Marion. The ship was charged for patrolling the Atlantic Ocean for enemy ships and submarines during World War II. Kraus obtained the rank of lieutenant senior grade.

Kraus married his first wife, Amelia, in 1945. The couple had two daughters, Mary and Amy. Continued on Page 12A

Departure ceremony slated for 1071st

by Dan Sanderson Staff Writer

Grayling residents and business owners are urged to attend a rally and to display yellow ribbons to support the men and women of the 1071st Maintenance Company, who will be leaving the community Monday for an eventual mission in Iraq.

A departure ceremony will be held 1 p.m. Saturday for the 1071st Maintenance Company in Building Three at Camp Grayling.

The 1071st Maintenance Company is being mobilized for the third rotation of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

The 1071st includes metal workers, machinists, crane operators, welders and mechanics who specialize in the repair of military vehicles, heavy armor and weapons. Several members of the unit work at the Maneuver Area Training Equipment Site located on North Down River Road, where equipment used by the National Guard is repaired and maintained.

About 178 men and women, many who live in the Grayling area, will take part in training in Texas prior to departing for Iraq.

DDA board takes input on proposed plans

by Dan Sanderson Staff Writer

Grayling Downtown
Development Authority (DDA) officials were urged Monday to work closely with other economic development initiatives in order to fill empty store fronts.

About 40 people attended a public forum Monday at the Grayling City Hall in order to give input on the proposed plans for downtown.

A DDA is established through a state program to halt declining property values and to promote economic development within the district.

Klaus Heinert, a project coordinator from the city's engineering and planning firm who has been working with local officials on the DDA plans, said initial projects would focus on enhancing the main corridors coming into downtown.

A common theme raised by residents was to work with county and township officials such as the Crawford County Economic Development Partnership to fill vacant buildings downtown, which is a goal of the DDA.

"Ultimately, it has to be private enterprise that has to come in to do this," said John Sloan, a member of the Crawford County

Economic Development Partnership Board.

Mary Fox, a DDA Board member and business director for Mercy Hospital, said she hoped that a director which will soon be hired by the Economic Development Partnership would focus on the downtown since the city and hospital are helping fund the position.

"We just need to find a way to shift that focus to be synergetic with this plan because we don't have the money for an additional director," Fox said.

Grayling City Manager Allen Lowe said officials would likely pursue economic development initiatives as the DDA evolves and gains momentum.

"We're going to work to make the downtown look nice, that was the charge given to us by the city council," Lowe said.

Dave Stephenson, chairman of the Crawford County Board of Commissioners, also stressed that renovating or moving the county building out of downtown area should be considered by city officials.

"It may throw what you're working on out in left field so we need to know that," Stephenson Continued on Page 12A

Argentinian to depart after fun, but cold, visit

by Josh Greenberg Staff Writer

It's a bit colder than Florencia Goldar is used to. In fact, in her home country, she could be playing tennis or wakeboarding or just stroll around without a hat, mittens or even a long-sleeved shirt.

"I like the people here. They are very friendly. But the weather for me is too cold," she said.

The 19 year-old Argentinian, who is visiting her brother Diego, a Rotary Exchange student, has made the most of her one and half month stay in the States.

Diego and his host, Mike Shearer, met Florencia in Orlando and went to Disney World. Florencia said that a lot of people from back home go to Disney World.

"We know a lot about America back home. We watch a lot of your television shows and listen to your music," she said.

Since her arrival, Florencia has toured around Traverse City and Gaylord, gone skiing at Boyne Mountain, built a snowman, and visited Crawford AuSable high school and middle school Spanish classes.

"It was very fun because the students asked a lot of questions...two of the Spanish teachers are taking me shopping this weekend," she said.

In the classes, Florencia and the teacher would converse in Spanish. Students had the opportunity to ask questions about her culture. According to high school teacher Michelle Compo, Goldar's visits gave her a chance

County board doles out environmental grants

by Dan Sanderson

Staff Writer

County officials are taking aim if for local projects. at scrap tires, eurasian milfoil and gypsy moths.

The Crawford County Board of Commissioners last week approved environmental grants

The first grant for $5,000 was awarded to the county's six townships and City of Grayling for a scrap tire collection day, which has tentatively been slated to be held on June 18.

The townships and the city will collectively contribute $5,000 to match the grant.

Beaver Creek Township Supervisor Lee Riley said the Weyerhaeuser Plant, which was recognized with the state's Clean Corporate Citizen award last year for environmental stewardship, may also assist with financial and volunteer support.

Last year, the officials were inundated with between 5,000 to 6,000 scrap tires for the inaugural scrap tire collection day. Officials had to turn away some residents because there was no time or resources available to remove some tires left on the rim,

Riley said. Riley said he was spurred to submit the grant application for county environmental funds when a township resident had to deal with dozens of old tires on his property that he did not know were located on the land because he purchased the property in the winter time. He hopes that other property owners and auto parts yards can get rid of unwanted tires and that tires left in the forests can be removed.

"We want to finish the job as much as we can, so this is one more push toward that," Riley

The County Board awarded a second $3,000 grant to Grayling Township and the Lake Margrethe Property Owners Association for an ongoing eurasian milfoil control project.

Eurasian milfoil is a fast-growing invasive water plant that can grow into thick mats and eventually ruin boating, fishing and swimming.

Two years ago, the lake association treated about 30 acres of the lake for milfoil. Last year, 19 acres of the lake were treated to keep the weeds under control and 15 acres will be targeted this

"They caught the eurasian milfoil before it became a huge problem so the cost is fairly minimal and we're just thrilled that the county has been willing to help out with this," said Grayling Township Supervisor Terry Wright.

The National Guard has pledged funds and technical assistance to help map the milfoil since one third of Lake Margrethe's lake frontage is part of Camp Grayling.

"We certainly appreciate that all governmental entities have taken to heart the quality of Lake Margrethe," said Gary McConnell, a lake association member who oversees the milfoil... eradication efforts.

Finally, Bruce Patrick the county environmental monitor, said he only received eight calls since last fall regarding a proposed county-wide gypsy moth control program.

Patrick said that most complaints came from Lake Margrethe, AuSable Trail and near Pere Cheney where large stands of oak trees are located. "A lot of that is state land," Patrick said. "The median on I-75 got hit pretty hard last year and you could really see it." Patrick said that Howard Taylor, the owner of Wellington Farms, has volunteered to remain as the coordinator who would to have their property sprayed for gypsy moths. "I don't think there's enough of a problem for a full countywide program, which can get assist property owners who want rather involved," Patrick said. Patrick said Lake Margrethe Association members would continue to collect funds for spraying and residents in other areas of the county would conduct similar fund drives.

County officials will seek financial assistance from the Michigan Department of Agriculture to address the gypsy moths situation.

"Rather than the property owners doing it privately we can still look to get a grant," said County Commissioner Pinkelman.

Mercy Hospital renovations going smoothly

Mercy Hospital Grayling project expected to be done in May Expansion and renovation of the Obstetrics and Surgery Units at Mercy Hospital Grayling are progressing as scheduled, with a tentative completion date for spring 2005.

"The project is going smoothly and should be completed on schedule in May 2005," said Jim Fegan, Munson Medical Center Facilities Construction Manager, who is overseeing the construction work.

By mid February, several changes should be completed in the Obstetrics/Neonatal unit, including the creation of four modern, private Labor-Delivery-Recovery-Post-Partum rooms, a new nurses station, and nursery that will provide a more functional space for pediatricians to care for newborns. In May, work will be concluded on a new medicine room, triage area, employee lounge, and storage. The last structural changes to the unit took place in 1950.

The first of the LDRP rooms opened on Jan. 17, 2005. Kari Backus, of Higgins Lake, was the first patient to use the new room. She gave birth to a son, Brice Earl Backus, on Jan. 17. Kari had given birth to her daughter Logan Hospital Grayling patients and at Mercy Hospital Grayling in 2001. "Things went as smoothly as they did before, only it was more comfortable," said Kari. "Everything is so nice and new and there is plenty of room. And the shower is definitely the high point."

Renovation work on one of the hospital's three operating rooms was completed last month and work is under way now on the other two.

"From our viewpoint, it's going very smoothly," said Surgical Services Director Kathy Young. "For the patients, it's been pretty seamless. For about three weeks "over the holidays" we limited elective surgeries, but were always available for emergencies. Now we're back to nor-

The two original operating rooms were built in the 1950s, with the third room added in the 1980s. Enhancements to the operating rooms will include new lighting, fresh, wall coverings, new flooring, a larger storage area, and updated equipment.

"Work on the operating rooms has been challenging," said Fegan. "We've had to coordinate working on one OR, while the others were kept operational. But it's gone well and Mercy visitors will see quite an improvement when the work is completed."

Battle over education job is nothing new

SO GOVERNOR Jennifer Granholm is hip-deep in a battle over the job as state superintendent of public instruc-

Tom Watkins holds the superintendency (at the time of this writing, anyhow), and the governor wants someone else in the job... nobody in particular, apparently, but she doesn't want Mr. Watkins any more.

He's not doing a good job, she claims. Am too, Mr. Watkins responds, at least under the circumstances. He claims his job is hampered by repeated cuts in state funding for education at all levels forced upon schools by the way the governor and the legislature have been balancing budgets for the past few years. It's been cut, cut, cut for schools.

He's got a point there.

BATTLES OVER the school superintendent job are not rare in recent years.

Gov. John Engler repeatedly tussled with the elected state board of education over control of schools, helping to throw out one incumbent he didn't want a few years back, and getting his own man appointed.

Gov. Granholm might note that Mr. Engler also tried but failed to dump Tom Watkins after he was appointed in 2001 by a state education board controlled by Democrats.

Mr. Watkins was part of the Democratic administration with Gov. James Blanchard as deputy chief of staff and then mental health director. He's completing his third year in the Granholm administration. Clearly Mr. Watkins is a political survivor.

The job pays $168,300 a year. Mr. Watkins claims he signed a contract renewal with the board earlier in January, so he's set for 2005. Ms. Granholm questions the agreement's validity because it was not approved by the full board of education.

Personally I don't know if Tom Watkins is doing a good job, or is not. It's unclear how this problem will be settled. My guess is that the governor will get her way and sooner or later Mr. Watkins will leave, but it will cost taxpayers some money through a settle-

AT THE BASE of this whole dispute and others which have preceded it is the 1963 Michigan state constitution.

Under the state constitution, it's not the governor's call. Mr. Watkins was hired by the elected state board of education, and only the state board can fire him. He's responsible to the state board of education, not the governor.

At the time of this writing, the eightmember board is split down the middle pro-Watkins and anti-Watkins, according to most published reports. The board, incidentally, has a 5-3 Democratic edge, so it's not strictly partisan.

The governor, on the other hand, certainly is at least the figurehead for all state government, including schools, and should be responsible for executive functions of state government, including schools. The public thinks he/she already is.

So why does not the governor appoint the top official in the schools department, just as every other executive department head is appointed - except the attorney general and secretary state, who are elected and separate, under the state constitution?

However, if the state superintendent should be appointed by and beholden to the governor, then of what use is an elected state board of education, which would have the power of direct election by the voters but no genuine responsibilities and no teeth to carry out its wishes?

CONTROL OF EDUCATION at the state level in Michigan is the victim of yet another constitutional malfunction.

Maybe it's time to inspect once more all aspects of government under our 42year old state constitution with a new constitutional convention.

Maybe it's time to correct several problems that plague efficient operation of state government, for example... our convoluted system of electing judges... our outmoded and malfunctioning tax and revenue structure... our bloated and expensive full time legislative system... our easily rigged and unfair systems of apportionment... multiplicity and overlapping of our local governmental units which complicate and frequently hinder rational and effective delivery of public services close to where we live.

could go on, but you get my drift. Maybe it's time for an overall overhaul.

by Sharon Priebe, President Animal Shelter of Crawford County

As 2004 rolls into 2005 we sometimes need to ponder on all that's gone on over the last several years. The Animal Shelter of Crawford County has sure had some good friends and great animals pass through its doors.

The Crawford County Commissioners continue to push through the land exchange by the Crawford County fair grounds and just as important the Crawford County Road Commissioners voted to extend the lease for another two years so we can get ready for the move. They knew that we could not ask for grants or any kind of financial help without the land deal being settled.

It takes a community with a big heart to think of the animals and what is best for them.

Years ago the accepted standard was to take animals in and then euthanize them in seven days. As we progress as a society it becomes increasingly more important to take responsibility for ourselves, our land and the animals we take into our lives.

The recent world disasters have reinforced the knowledge that all life is precious. It is so heart warming to look back at the statistics on the dogs and know that tremendous progress has been made and the number of shelter dogs has dropped due to personal responsibility and the ongoing spaying and neutering

The next big step is to get our cat population headed in the same direction. It takes time and effort by volunteers and animal lovers of all kinds to do the right thing and keep pushing for a bet-

The Road Commission and the Board of Commissioners as well as the citizens of Crawford County certainly must know that in their hearts. They know that we are not finished with this project as they continue to support and help and bless us with their

Even friends outside of Crawford County help with the push for the funds to build a better shelter. One such event is the snowmobile ride from the Ole Barn on January 29 with great support from Greg and Kathy and is organized and sponsored by Mary Becker and Washington

Another is the Durango raffle on July 24 with Brad Scheer stepping up to be counted as a supporter with his very generous deal on the vehicle. And so it goes, a step at a time.

So as you get get ready for a beautiful spring think of their help as another big step for humans in the continuing struggle to make this a truly wonderful world for our animals.

What's past is past

To the editor:

I would like to address a letter published in the Avalanche on January 20, 2005 from Anita Mack, headline "Library board members need to stop bickering."

As the newest member of the Crawford County Library Board of Trustees, I was quite surprised by what Ms. Mack had to say. This letter is written from my own thoughts and not under the direction of the Library Board.

Since coming on board, I have attended every meeting: two in November, two in December and two in January. Ms. Mack has not been in attendance at any of these meetings, so I can't imaginve how she can state, or even imply, she has witnessed bickering amongst board members.

I will agree, there has been discussion and there has been debate, none of which should be misconstruct as blekering.

There's soldiers here in Grayling

They've got their bags all packed and headed for Iraq

They'll leave this frozen tundra

they're headed for the sand

their mission will be maintenance at least that is the plan.

To keep the trucks and tanks they fix

Ms. Mack also stated, "Presently they (board members) are constantly reneging on a contract to keep the Beaver Creek Township Library up and running permanently, even though the Library millage passed, of which part of it was to keep this library open and servicing the community."

Let me assure the good citizens of Crawford County and Beaver Creek Township, there has been no reneging. By a unanimous vote, which would intimate again no "bickering," the board decided it needed a closer look at that branch library's needs and the demands of the community. Research has been performed and a proposed contract agreement has been developed that coincidentally addresses many of Ms. Mack's concerns. That contract will be offered at the next Beaver Creek

Board of Trustees meeting. It is my hope that the citizens of Beaver Creek will show more interest in their library as usage statistics prove the interest has been very low.

Addressing Ms. Mack's point regarding the passage of the operating millage in August 2004, she may be a bit confused. Even with the new funding, it is the Library Board's obligation and duty to see to it your tax dollars are spent wisely. Millage dollars should not be looked upon as a windfall, but as an assurance that even in tough times the library system will be, at the least, sustained. This very important funding is sort of an insurance policy that no matter what happens to state funding, or if penal fine revenues decrease, our library services will not suffer. It should never be considered reason for a spending spree, but spent with prudence and invested wisely in our libraries.

The passage of the millage also stopped the depletion of the building fund which needs to be reserved for future expansion, equipment needs and other capital improvements.

The ideal situation would be that funding would stay consistent from all sources, but we do not have that luxury at this time.

In conclusion, let me state I have had nothing but a positive experience working with the board, the library director and staff thus far and I can't see any reason why this should change anytime soon. What's past is past and should be left far behind.

SBA disaster loans available in northern Michigan

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) announced that federal disaster loans are available to small, nonfarm, agricultural-dependent businesses in the counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Clare, Crawford, Gladwin, Gratiot, Isabella, Kalkaska, Mecosta, ·Midland, Lake, Montcalm, Montmorency, Newaygo, Osceola, Oscoda and help can't start until they apply," Otsego in the state of Michigan.

"SBA's disaster declaration was issued as a result of a similar action taken by Secretary of Agriculture to help farmers recover from damages and losses to crops caused by early freezes that occurred August 19 through October 8, 2004," said SBA Disaster Area Director, Michael C. Allen.

Under this declaration, SBA's Economic Injury Disaster Loan (EIDL) program is available to small, non-farm, agriculturedependent businesses and small agricultural cooperatives that suffered economic injury as a direct result of the weather's effect on agricultural producers. According to Allen farm implement dealers, seed and feed, spraying, and irrigation businesses are examples of businesses most typically in need of assistance from the SBA.

Economic Injury Disaster Loans (EIDLs) provide working capital to small businesses so they can continue to pay bills and meet normal operating expenses. Maximum loans to a business of up to $1.5 million are available at 2.9 percent interest with loan terms of up to 30 years. SBA determines eligibility for the program based on the

They are vital to the day-to-day operation of the park and add so much to the atmosphere for our visitors to truly enjoy their experience at the park.

There are all sorts of areas where volunteers are needed. Some examples would be leading groups, interpreting, photography, putting together displays, basic domestic skills, arts and crafts of all sorts, demonstrating, acting and much more.

The parks season begins May 28 this year in which an ample supply of volunteers will need to be in place.

The Wible Speaks

Our War for Liberty

One of our founding fathers, Alexander Hamilton, warned us. "Let us recollect that peace or war will not always be left to our option; that however moderate or unambitious we may be, we cannot count upon the moderation, or hope to extinguish the ambition of others." We have been relearning this truth since the attacks upon our nation both before and since 9/11. The words of Edmund Burke ring in our ears, "All that is necessary for the forces of evil to win in the world is for enough good men to do nothing." John Adams reminded us of the value of our liberty and freedom, "But a Constitution of Government once changed from Freedom, can never be restored. Liberty, once lost, is lost forever."

From our earliest history we have been warned about the dangers from those seeking universal peace at any price. "A universal peace, it is to be feared, is in the catalogue of events, which will never exist but in the imaginations of visionary philosophers, or in the breasts of benevolent enthusiasts." -- James Madison. AsGeorge Washington, the father of our country, taught us, "If we desire to avoid insult, we must be able to repel it: if we desire to secure peace, one of the most powerful instruments of our rising prosperity, it must be known that we are at all times ready for war." As Joseph Story said, important also to consider, that the surest means of avoiding war is to be prepared for it in peace."

Frederick Douglass said in 1857, "The whole history of the progress of human liberty shows that all concessions yet made to her august claims have been born of earnest struggle. If there is no struggle, there is no progress. Those who profess to favor freedom, and yet deprecate agitation, are men who want crops without plowing up the ground, they want rain without thunder and lightning. They want the ocean without the awful roar of its many waters."

Abraham Lincoln reminded the U.S. Congress as we fought to end slavery in America, "In giving freedom to the slave, we assure freedom to the free honorable alike in what we give and what we preserve. We shall nobly save, or meanly lose, the last best hope of earth."

Winston Churchill warned the world before Munich, "We must recognize that we have a great inheritance in our possession, which represents the prolonged achievement of the centuries; that there is not one of our simple uncounted rights today for which better men than we have not died on the scaffold or the battlefield. We have not only a great treasure, we have a great cause."

As Ronald Reagan said, "You and I know and do not believe that life is so dear and peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery. If nothing is worth dying for, when did this begin...? ...Should Moses have told the children of Israel to live in slavery under the pharaohs? Should Christ have refused the cross? Should the patriots of Concord Bridge have thrown down their guns and refused to fire the shot heard 'round the world? The martyrs of history were not fools, and our honored dead who gave their lives to stop the advance of the Nazis didn't die in vain!"

Our War for Liberty today is not in vain. But only God can give us the victory. Pastor "B"

Pictured in front is Mark McCully, director of Workforce Development at Kirtland Community College's M-TEC Center, who coordinates more than 400 training modules offered to employers who want or need to improve their skills.

Workforce development has a new partner at M-TEC

Outsourcing, downsizing, reengineering, restructuring they're the buzzwords of today's business and manufacturing worlds and for today's workforce they signal the need to update skills and jump into the frenzy of the "global economy." Locally, as manufacturers move their plants to other countries and the unemployment rate rises, it's never been more crucial to have a leg up on the competi-

"Those who are more versatile and have an edge are the ones who are going to be working." said Mark McCully, director of Workforce Development at Kirtland Community College's Michigan Technical Education Center which opened its doors in Gaylord in January 2001.

McCully coordinates the more than 400 training modules that M-TEC offers to employers who want or need to improve the skills of their workers and he's made M-TEC a hot commodity in this region of the state.

Gaylord's Cooper Standard Automotive plant employs 220 and recently sent some of its employees for training at M-TEC.

"We've taken similar training a couple hours away," said Chris Pushman, electrical engineer and maintenance manager for Cooper. "The corporate office sometimes offers training, but that could be anywhere in the country."

In particular, Cooper employees took advantage of a HAZ-WOPER - hazardous waste operations and emergency response - course offered through M-TEC in December. Workers from Georgia Pacific, Great Lakes Tissue of Cheboygan, Sandvik of West Branch and other firms also participated in the 40-hour training that is mandated by the Occupational Safety and Health Association and trains workers how to comply with laws and regulations that pertain to their jobs.

It's all part of the M-TEC mission. Courses are offered with the aim of improving the existing workforce for a wide range of industries, including restaurants or other food handling operations, health care facilities and many more. Workers can learn anything from how to create a PowerPoint presentation, to the facts about labor law, safety, or how to streamline their manufacturing processes.

McCully said he can arrange for the classes to take place at the M-TEC facility, conference centers or on site at just about any business within the M-TEC or Kirtland Community College district.

McCully has been the director of the Workforce Development program for M-TEC since Nov. 1, 2004. The primary focus of his job is identifying local training needs and coordinating training programs to meet those needs. my job is seeing people learn opened. With an associate's something they can use on the degree in welding from Kirtland job and to be successful,"

McCully said. But he isn't the only one to be rewarded by the experience. "I met with some business representatives this morning," he said recently. "They would normally have to send their people downstate to get the type of training we offer. Taking it through M-TEC saves them money on travel, hotels, food - all those extras they would have to pay."

M-TEC's workforce development roster is growing all the time. McCully develops new courses where the need exists.

In addition to helping train those who are already employed, M-TEC offers certificate and degree programs in a number of high-skill career areas, including carpentry, electrical technology, heating/ventilation/AC/refrigeration, industrial maintenance, machine tool technology, and welding and fabricating. Certificates of completion are also offered in a Practical Nursing Level 1 (LPN) program.

Dual-enrollment programs for high school students and class articulation - which is also offered - give high school students a leg up in the job market.

"The most satisfying part of faculty at M-TEC since it Community College and a bachelor's from Ferris State University in welding engineering technology, he brought years of industry work experience to the center when he began there as a welding instructor. He continues as a part-time instructor on top of his job of coordinating classes for the Workforce Development program.

In his spare time, he's working on earning a master's degree through Spring Arbor University, taking advantage of the University Center, co-inhabitant of the state-of-the-art building M-TEC occupies, located near Gaylord High School.

McCully said all types of students are finding their way to M-TEC. A big draw is the flexible approach the center takes. Courses are taught in a modular fashion and enrollment is open entry/exit, meaning students can sign up any time, learn the modules they want, at their own pace and take on only as much of a course load as they need.

"For example, in our welding program, we have students from high school age, to middle aged, from college students to workers trying to improve their skills, to McCully has been part of the retirees who want to pursue this as a hobby or fix something around the house," McCully said.

But it's those who are currently in the workforce and need to improve or gain skills that McCully is focusing on in his new position, and he's finding it a very rewarding experience as the state's unemployment rate rises and the wage gap widens.

Current course offerings in the Workforce Development program include paraprofessional certification that is required by the No Child Left Behind Act, as well as courses in Microsoft Excel, a commonly used computer spreadsheet program. In February, look for M-TEC to offer a ServSafe course for those food industry workers who need it. The 40-hour HAZWOPER training, an eight-hour HAZ-WOPER refresher, and training in lean manufacturing principles will be offered in March.

For more information on course and program offerings at M-TEC, call 989-705-3600, or log on at http://mtec.kirtland.edu http://mtec.kirtland.edu/">.

Know your limits when it comes to snow shoveling

By Emie Harwell

It's said that there are only two certainties in life: death and taxes. Well, I'd argue that here in Michigan, we have a third: snow.

Now there's no doubt snow can be beautiful. However, it can also pose some risk to our health.

If you have a personal or family history of heart disease or high blood pressure, if you smoke, or if you're generally an inactive person, you can be in a danger zone if you run out there to shovel the walk.

- Even generally healthy people need to be careful. Here are some tips: - Freshly fallen snow is easier to shovel, so try to remove snow right after a
- Dress warmly and in layers.
- Drink water to avoid dehydration.
- Bend from the knees and tighten your stomach muscles as you lift the snow. If the snow is too heavy to lift, push it like a snowplow.

Most importantly, take it slow and stop if you feel pain or discomfort.

The bottom line is that it's important to do what's right for your health. Your best options might be paying a youngster in the neighborhood to shovel your walk or asking someone for a helping hand.

Take care of your health before it's lonnngggg gone.

Ernie Harwell, "the voice of the Detroit Tigers" for more than four decades, retired after 55 years behind a major league microphone. Today, at age 87, Emie's days are filled with serving as a health and fitness advocate for Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan and Blue Care Network, public appearances, writing, traveling and taking long walks with "Miss Lulu," his wife of more than 60 years. His latest book, a collection of his baseball columns titled "Life After Baseball," is available at local bookstores or by calling 1-800-245-5082.

Grayling funeral home under new ownership

by Josh Greenberg Staff Writer

For Terrie Lockwood, directing funerals has been a dream she's had since she was a teenager. With her family's purchase of Sorenson Funeral Home recently, that dream is realized.

"I wanted to be a funeral director in high school. But at that time, women weren't accepted as funeral directors," she said.

Lockwood, a Grayling resident for the last ten years, has spent twenty years as a nurse. After working at Grayling's Mercy Hospital, she enrolled in the Wayne State Funeral Directing School, Michigan's only school in funeral direction.

Through both education and apprenticeship, Lockwood became experienced in her field. The new Sorenson-Lockwood

Funeral Home is the beginning of a family endeavor.

"It's important for people to know that all pre-existing contracts will be honored," Lockwood said.

Terrie Lockwood has made some changes, including putting a desk by the entrance and also a table in the arrangement room, to promote a more familial setting.

"There's a lot more to setting up a funeral than people think People plan up to six months for marriage. For funerals, there's only two or three days,". Lockwood said.

Lockwood strives to make each service personalized.

"My favorite part is meeting with the families and making the service reflect the person's life,"

Chrissy, Terrie and Rick Lockwood stand in the new arrangement room of the Sorenson-Lockwood Funeral Home.

Northern Tails wagging in brand new building

by Josh Greenberg Staff Writer

On January 10, Jan Andrews officially moved her pet grooming and salon business, Northern Tails, from Michigan Avenue to Glenwood Road, off of Airport

"We wanted to own our own building. I think it was the smartest thing we ever did," Andrews said.

. The new building, built by Lacey Stephan Construction, took only three months. The interior became a family project. ; "I would work all day, and then go work all night on the new place. Sometimes I'd be up until two in the morning," Andrews said. The opening of the Michigan Avenue Northern Tails on November 27, 2000, marked Andrews' return to grooming away from cancer. "I quit my old business, Milltown Grooming, in 1992 to be with my sister," Andrews said. Andrews began grooming

WASHINGTON NOTES

By Carl Levin, U.S. Senator (D-Michigan)

Looking Forward to 2005

As the new 109th Congress recent projections show continconvenes. I want to share with you some of the achievements and disappointments of the past about the year ahead.

Over the last two years, our nation has faced some very significant challenges - the war in Iraq; the threat of terrorism at home; the loss of jobs, especially manufacturing jobs, in our economy; the continuing rise in the cost of prescription drugs and health care in general; and the deepening of the federal deficit ditch. In too many cases, the last Congress failed to meet, or in some cases, even address these challenges.

The tax cuts approved by the last Congress are dangerously deepening the federal deficit and weakening economic prospects for the future. In January 2001, the Congressional Budget Office projected a ten year surplus of $5.6 trillion. In the wake of the inequitable tax cuts, not only have those surpluses disappeared, but last year the federal deficit rose to $413 billion, the largest deficit ever. And the most ued huge deficits over the next By 2014, each ten years. American citizen's share of the year and a few of my thoughts debt will be about $43,000. Paying off a debt of this size will require either extraordinary tax increases or significant cuts in critical government programs.

> Because our nation's intelligence community greatly needed change, I voted for the bipartisan intelligence reform legislation that passed at the end of last year. While the bill makes many positive changes, I was disappointed that the bill failed to address the critical problem of the politicization of intelligence that we saw prior to the Iraq War. The creation of a strong Director of National Intelligence makes it even more important to ensure that intelligence assessments are not influenced by the policy judgments of whatever administration is in power.

> On the Armed Services Committee, we have worked to enhance our security at home and abroad, improve pay, equipment and health care for our troops, and honor our commitments to our nation's veterans.

I recently returned from a visit to Iraq where, once again, I was able to see firsthand the courageous job our troops are doing. Unfortunately, we continue to pay a heavy price for our failure to anticipate and adequately plan for the aftermath of the overthrow of the Saddam Hussein regime. The elections in Iraq at the end of this month are a critical step toward a stable and democratic Iraq, but the elections are not a panacea. The security environment in Iraq will improve only when a new Iraqi government has the popular support of the Iraqi people and can create a strong army and police force that will enable the Iraqis themselves to overcome the insurgency in their country.

I was disappointed by the failure of the 108th Congress to pass a highway bill which improved the position of "donor" states like Michigan, which send more federal gasoline tax dollars to Washington than they receive back for road and bridge projects. I have been fighting to correct the inequity faced by donor states since I came to the Senate. We've made some progress, but I won't be satisfied until we get a fair return on our gas tax dollars. In the 109th Congress, we will rejoin the battle for equity for Michigan in transportation fund-

As co-chairman of the Senate Great Lakes Task Force, the protection and restoration of the Great Lakes remains one of my most important priorities. I am pleased to have helped secure $22.5 million, an increase of $12.5 million, to fund the Great Lakes Legacy program. This funding will reinvigorate contaminated sediment cleanup efforts throughout Michigan.

Looking ahead, I am eager to begin the work of the new Congress. Strengthening Social Security for the future, assuring the affordability of health care and prescription drugs for all Americans, bringing our troops safely home from Iraq and Afghanistan, closing loopholes that enable businesses and individuals to use offshore tax havens to dodge payment of their U.S. taxes, and working toward a fairer, less complicated tax system that doesn't encourage the export of U.S. jobs overseas are jus a few of the issues that the 109th Congress must confront.

Addressing these challenges and moving our nation forward will require Congress to set aside partisan differences and work together more often. I will do everything I can to assist in that effort.

Carl Levin is the senior U.S. senator from Michigan.

National Guard participates in critical infrastructure protection

Michigan Homeland Security Critical Infrastructure Protection Committee participated in a one day seminar designed to identify vital intrastate infrastructure, and establish preventative actions that better protect the citizens of Michigan against acts of terrorism. The Critical Infrastructure Protection Committee is made up of Michigan National Guard officials and representatives from local, State, Federal and private agencies.

The Buffer Zone Protection Plan created by the Michigan National Guard is one such preventative plan. This plan makes it more difficult for terrorists to conduct surveillance or launch attacks in the vicinity of critical infrastructure and at key assets. The plan outlines the perimeters of a target; identifies the threats, risks and vulnerabilities of the target; and documents the actions to be taken.

In the event of a terrorist attack, the Michigan National Guard at the direction of the governor, will deploy a Quick Reaction Force (QRF) within two to four hours of the call. The QRF reports to the incident commander and to implement force protection capabilities. A sizable follow-on force, the Ready Reaction Force, will replace the ORF within 72 hours. The QRF is then available to respond to any subsequent events that may

Changes to school board elections mean tight deadlines and new requirements

A new election consolidation law now requires persons interested in running for a seat on a local school board to file by Tuesday, Feb. 8. That's a full two months earlier than in the past, says the Michigan Association of School Boards (MASB).

Its annual guide to school elections details all the changes under the law and explains all the requirements to get on the ballot.

For decades, school elections have been held on a Monday in mid-June with filing deadlines in April. Now, most local board of education elections will occur May 3. This year's early filing deadline requires prompt action by candidates to qualify for a spot on the ballot, according to MASB. Key deadlines for citizens to file their forms

• Tuesday, Feb. 8, 4 p.m.-Nominating petitions and affidavits of identity due. (A $100 nonrefundable fee may be filed in lieu of a petition.)

• Friday, Feb. 11, 4 p.m.-Deadline for a written withdrawl.

 Friday, April 29, 4 p.m.-Deadline for write-in candidates to file intent.

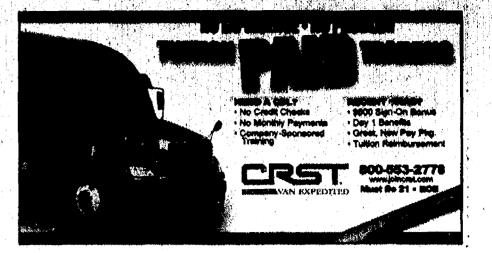

Under the new law, candidates must file their petitions with either their city of township clerk, or with the county clerk. According to MASB's 2005 Candidates Guide to School Board Elections, where they file depends on what their school district boundaries are.

"For a school district whose entire territory lies within a single city or township, the city or township clerk will be the school district filing official. For a school district that has territory in more than one city or township, the county clerk of the country in which the largest number of registered school district voters reside will be the school district filing official."

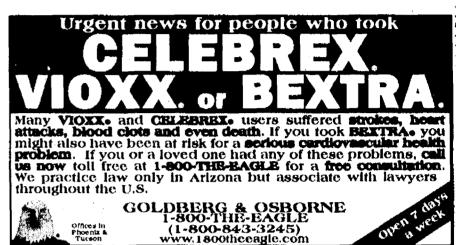

Key deadlines for ISD board elections and campaign finance rules are also spelled out. Not all school elections will occur in May. Some boards have adopted November 8 for their election.

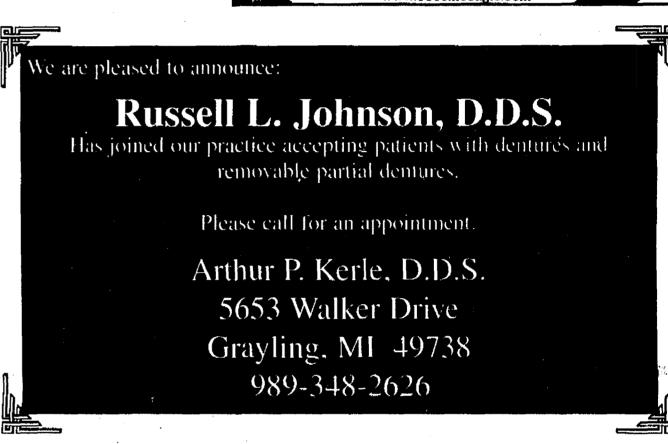

Contact your local school district for specific details on election dates.

Kraus opened the Northland Department Store in Grayling, which is currently occupied by Northern Concepts, which featured ladies clothing and material. Kraus also bought the store on the corner of Michigan Avenue and I-75 Business Loop, where he sold shoes, boots and clothing. He built the Ben Franklin store downtown in 1948, and would drive up on weekends from Detroit with merchandise and instructions for his employees.

Kraus was honored to serve on the Grayling State Bank's Board of Directors.

After his first wife died in 1967, Kraus married Laurine, and the couple had two daugh-

Kraus eventually closed the Northland Department store and Kraus Dry Goods Store downtown in order to open the Ben Franklin Store and Laurine's Department Store in the Grayling Mall. Bill Gannon, the owner of Gannon Broadcasting who purchased the Ben Franklin store last year, said recognizing Kraus for his contributions to Grayling was long overdue.

"I can't imagine anybody that has really made that much of an influence on our community than Emil," Gannon said. "It's 70 years of dedication, respect for this community and for the people that live here. He did everything and he was a major player for many years." The Athena Award, which is given to a woman who demonstrates excellence in their profession and provides valuable service to their community, was given to Kay Cosgray.

Cosgray is a community liaison for Michigan Works. She is

County officials are in the preliminary stages of exploring a millage proposal to pay for new county offices.

Bill Gannon, owner of Growler's Pub and Pizza, Bear's Den Pizzeria and the former Ben

Ski teams improve in second league meet the girls team placing 4th. The boys team finished 2nd behind league-leading Harbor Springs at Boyne Mountain on Thursday. The Vikings closed the gap on the Rams by 11 points this time around and extended their winning margin over 3rd place Elk Rapids from 18 to 32

The Vikings were led by Patrick McInally, who placed 6th in slalom and 11th in giant slalom (GS). Jim Jansen placed 9th in both events. Adam Gilbert took 10th in slalom and 17th in GS. KIRTLAND BASKETBALL

Women's Team

ROSCOMMON - Casey Burrows led Kirtland's Lady Firebirds in scoring with 17 points in their 79-70 win over the Alpena Lumberjacks Saturday, January 22, in Roscommon.

Only a few points separated the teams for most of the game, until the final minutes when the Firebirds simply outplayed their rivals.

"We played Firebird defense tonight," said Kirtland coach Teresa Stuck. "There was a balanced scoring attack, with five people in double figures, which came off of 40 forced turnovers."

The win is likely to blow a little wind in the sails of the Firebirds as it ended their fourgame in-conference losing streak which has dropped them to eighth in Michigan's Eastern Conference.

"This was a game we felt we had to win and it was good to see the team rise to the challenge for 40 full minutes," Stuck said.

It was a great game for Burrows.

"She finally found her stroke tonight, but it was only after rebounding and playing defense," Stuck said.

Kenzie Steward added 15 points for Kirtland, while Nynne Larsen contributed 14 and Felon Harris put in 13 points.

"She's becoming a real leader out there and taking care of the basketball," Stuck said about Harris, who is a Kirtland freshman, coming to Roscommon from Toronto.

Amanda Cooper netted 10 points while playing through a couple injuries suffered in the Firebirds' tough contest against Mott Community College three days before.

The win pushed the Lady Firebirds' record to 2-5 in the Bastern Conference and 5-15 overall, while Alpena fell to 3-4 (2-12 overall).

ROSCOMMON - Despite Amanda Cooper sailing in six three-point shots and a total of 22 points for the Kirtland Lady Firebirds, they still took a 91-67 loss to the Eastern Conference's second-place team, Mott Community College Wednesday, January 19, in Roscommon.

Trailing only by 7 at the half, the Firebirds turned in a gritty performance, despite the final

"We gave the best team in the conference a run for their money for 34 minutes," said Firebirds coach Teresa Stuck. "We just need to learn to win. As a young team, we played them down to the wire, but then cracked under the pressure and turned the ball over too much when it mattered."

Cooper's performance stood out despite the loss.

"She gave an all-out effort and really played smart," Stuck said about the sophomore from Harrison, "Her teammates really did a nice job too of recognizing she was hot offensively. They got her open and got her the ball. I am proud of the team for recognizing that without forcing things - we are definitely getting smarter."

For the Firebirds, Kenzie Steward added 12 points and 6 rebounds, while Nynne Larsen netted 10 points and 3 steals.

"Felon Harris took very good care of the basketball for us, with 7 points, 5 assists and 3 steal," Stuck added, noting that Meghan Bastian had 7 rebounds and that Ashley Andrews stepped up her game.

"I am proud of how we have played in the last couple games," Stuck said. "If we keep playing that hard, the tide is bound to turn. We are learning more every game and soon that's going to turn to a victory."

Men's Team

ROSCOMMON -Firebirds' Bernard Daniels fired in 30 points for the Kirtland Community College men's basketball team Wednesday, January 19, in Roscommon but it wasn't enough for the win as Kirtland took a 90-75 loss to the Eastern Conference leader, Community College.

Kirtland's conference record now stands at 3-2 (13-6 overall), at 5-0.

It was a disappointing loss for the Firebirds, who may have stood a better chance of keeping up with Mott if they'd been at full strength, but with two lead players sitting the bench, there was barely time for the Firebirds to breathe.

Frank Washington added 11 points for the Firebirds and Craig Ash netted 9.

PORT HURON - Kirtland Community College's Craig Ash, a 6'8" freshman from Northern, Pontiac impressed his coach with his performance on the basketball court Saturday when the Firebirds took to the road and garnered an 86-80 overtime win against St. Clair County Community College.

Ash's sky-high total of 28 rebounds, plus 18 points and 8 blocked shots had coach Glen Donahue using terms such as "incredible" and "amazing."

"The pros don't even turn in numbers like that," Donahue said about Ash who was dealing with injuries during part of this sea-

Adding to Ash's stellar performance Saturday were David Allison and Frank Washington sinking 17 points apiece for Kirtland, Adam Reese with 15 and Bernard Daniels with 12.

This was Kirtland's third overtime win in their last five games.

"The game showed great effort while Mott remains undefeated by everybody," Donahue said. "Everybody played a key role."

Cheers! Tips on how to give a wedding toast

by Tresa Erickson

Congratulations. You've been asked to be the best man at your brother's wedding. You're honored and look forward to almost all of your duties, except for making the first toast at the wedding reception. You don't have a way with words and you definitely don't like speaking in public. The last time you gave a speech was 10 years ago in your college speech class. Relax. Making a toast is not as hard as you might think. Just follow these tips and you're sure to do well.

Although it might be more to your liking, standing up and mumbling, "Congratulations," just won't do. Your toast should be at least three to four minutes long, so you're definitely going to have to put some thought into it. Most toasts generally consist of four parts: a purpose, a thank you, a personal story or two, and the toast itself. The first and second parts are easy. All you need to do is introduce yourself, explain your relationship to the groom, indicate that you are there to offer your congratulations to the couple and thank the wedding hosts. The third part is a bit trickier. You will need to get more personal and tell a story or two that reveals something about the couple. Once you get through this phase, the fourth part is a breeze. You simply wrap up the toast by offering your congratulations and best wishes to the couple.

Now that you are more familiar with the basic parts of a toast, you can start to compose yours. Try to keep what you have to say brief but meaningful. There's nothing worse than listening to a 20-minute speech full of insignificant ramblings. Use examples to back up your remarks. Don't just say, "The couple is great together," and leave it at that. Tell a story that illustrates how well suited the two are for each other. Be specific and keep your audience in mind. Identify the woman you keep referring to as the groom's aunt and steer clear of inside jokes. Not everyone will be privy to them. Keep the tone of your toast light and refrain from saying anything negative. Don't kid around and call the groom "a slob." Negative remarks, no matter if they are said in jest or not, are not a good way to commemorate a wedding day.

Once you've written your toast, invite a friend over and deliver it to them. Get their feedback and take their suggestions seriously. Make any revisions necessary and then practice it often. Practice in front of the mirror and in front of your friends and family. Use note cards if you need them, and if people seem to have a hard time hearing you, see if you can have a microphone available at the reception.

Making a toast doesn't have to be a mind-rattling event. With careful deliberation and practice, you can make a toast that everyone will appreciate and remember for years to come.

The crowning touch: a veil

by Tresa Erickson

You searched far and wide for days on end, and you finally found it—your dream dress, the wedding gown that makes you feel like Cinderella. You selected your shoes, jewelry and other accessories, and now you're looking for that one final piece of your assemble—the veil.

These days veils come in all lengths and styles. You can find shoulder, elbow, fingertip, chapel and cathedral-length veils with headpieces ranging in style from simple white headbands to jewel-encrusted tiaras. The choice is yours, and as long as you make your selection with care, you're sure to look stunning on your wedding day.

Here are some tips for finding just the right veil.

First, study the style of your wedding dress and choose a veil that complements it. If your dress is ivory and covered in pearls, for example, you should choose an ivory veil with pearls. The veil should also complement the overall feel of the dress. Pairing an antique, beaded gown with a veil scattered with rhinestones and topped with a shiny silver tiara is not a good idea. Not only will the antique style of the dress clash with the modern style of the veil, but because the two pieces are so elaborate and ornate, they may compete with each other.

In addition to the style of your dress, you should also consider your size when selecting a veil. Long, flowing veils can overwhelm petite brides, while short, sleek ones can make tall brides look even taller. The length and design of the veil should accentuate your features. If you have a slim waist, you should choose a shorter veil that will show it off, whereas if you have a thick waist, you may want a longer veil that will disguise it.

You should also take your hairstyle into consideration when choosing a veil. If you have long hair and plan to wear it down, you should buy a longer veil, perhaps even one that's detachable, so you can remove it from the headpiece at the reception when you're dancing. If you're going to wear your hair up, you can go for a shorter veil

The type of ceremony you are having should also play a role in your selection process. Shoulder- and fingertip-length veils will work for formal and semiformal weddings, while cathedral-length veils are usually reserved for very formal weddings. Chapel-length veils are also typically used more in formal weddings.

The trick to choosing the right veil is to try on as many as possible with your wedding dress. Look at yourself from every angle, making sure the veil complements the style of your dress, accentuates your features, will work with your hairstyle and reflects the type of ceremony you're having. If you can't find a veil that works for you, don't despair. You can always have one made. Many brides today take this option and add personal touches to their veils by having family heirlooms and jewels incorporated into the headpiece.

Bridal registries reflect our casual lifestyles

(ARA) – Brides building their bridal registries today are thinking twice about china cabinet classics, turning instead to home items in which the luxury is a bit more casual.

"Five-piece place settings are for my mother's generation," says new bride Julie Mathers, 31. "We wanted gifts that would work with our lifestyle and help make our home more inviting and luxurious — and luxury for me is a home where my husband and I can escape from the world."

Like many brides, Mathers is finding her own definition of luxury in home décor items that she says are embraceable, such as handmade pottery serving pieces and Egyptian cotton bath towels. Absent from her registry were more formal items including fine china, sterling flatware and silver serving dishes.

"Silver is fine for some people, but we wanted gifts we knew we would use," says the North Carolina native.

And since Mathers and her fiancé had separate homes before they married – today's average bride is 27 and her groom is 29 – they already had many of the essential items needed to set up a household. They used their bridal registry to embellish their home, asking for patio furniture and a gas grill for casual entertaining and choosing high-end linens and towels and an oversized showerhead to make their bathroom a home spa.

"Bridal registries are becoming less utilitarian and more personalized," says Leslie Gillock from Wamsutta home fashions, which recently launched wamsuttabridal. com to help brides organize their bridal registry thoughts. "Brides are still using registries to outfit their kitchens and build their linen closets, but they're also adding an eclectic mix of home décor items that are fun, functional and luxurious."

That's the case for bride-to-be Lani Britten. "How often would I use fine china? In my lifestyle, it's impractical, and my taste will probably change over the years," says the 28-year-old South Florida bride. "I will put luxury in my bedroom though," says Britten, who registered for high-thread count, 100 percent cotton sheets, a silk comforter and even a bedskirt and throw pillows. "Nice sheets will never go out of style," she says. "Plus, they're something my fiancé and I can both enjoy."

Along with hopes of possibly getting her first set of Court of Versailles 500-Thread Count sheets, Britten is excited about adding soft chenille rugs, a spa bath pillow and a CD player to her home – items she defines as indulgent yet practical. They will allow her to create the bedroom retreat she's always imagined.

And since Britten and her fiancé like to entertain, they're hoping their bridal registry will allow them to add finishing decorating touches to their home with artwork, outdoor games and barbecue tools.

"We want a nice home, but we want it to be comfortable for us and welcoming to our friends," she says. "Some day, we may decide we need fine china, but right now, our lifestyle is casual, and our luxuries unpretentious."

Bridal Registry Tips

Keep these guidelines in mind when creating a bridal registry:

- Select items from two categories: What you really need – such as utensils and dishes – and what you really want – such as that set of indulgent Court of Versailles 500-Thread Count sheets.
- Give gift givers choices: Men might like to buy their buddies a gas grill from a Wal-Mart, and girlfriends will enjoy the decorative selections at home stores such as Linens'n Things and Bed Bath and Beyond.
- Stock Up: You'll want at least eight to 12 dinnerware place settings and utensils, three sets of sheets for the master bedroom and enough towels for you and your first guests.
- Check Up: Review your registries periodically to take off items that you've already received and add new items as you better plan your new home.

A circle of love: choosing rings

by Tresa Erickson

Wedding rings have been a cornerstone of wedding ceremonies since ancient Egyptian times. Every year, thousands of couples around the world slip them onto each other's fingers as a pledge of their eternal love. In just a few short months, you will be joining the ranks and slipping a circle of love onto your fiance's finger, but first you must find the perfect ring.

The time has finally come for you to choose a wedding ring for your fiancé. Think just any old ring will do? Think again. With the wide range of styles now available, your fiancé might just want something different than the traditional gold band.

Few couples today purchase matching wedding rings. Many go for rings that complement each other in color or shape but have their own unique design. The styles of wedding rings for men extend beyond the plain gold band. Walk into any jewelry store and you'll find textured bands, two-toned bands, diamond bands and more. The choices are endless.

Men's wedding rings generally come in three shapes: flat, half round with a flat interior and a rounded exterior, and comfort fit with a rounded interior and any exterior. The width of the ring also varies, ranging from four to seven millimeters. Finishes include gold, silver, platinum and more. Some rings even feature two-tone finishes. Gold bands with platinum edges, for example, are popular. Many rings also come with diamonds. One popular style has burnished diamonds scattered around the band and set flush with it, while another features a channel of diamonds encircling the band.

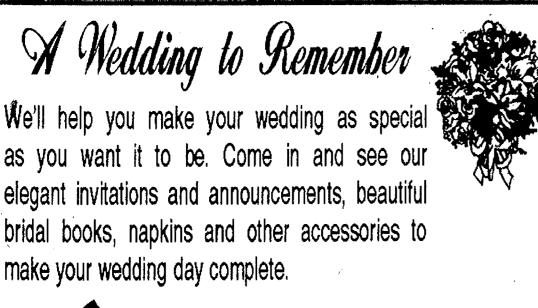

With such a large variety of rings to choose from, you may have trouble choosing one for your fiancé. Try to keep his personality and preferences in mind. If he works outdoors and tends not to wear jewelry, you may want to select something simple like a plain platinum band, whereas if he works indoors and wears jewelry, you might go for something a little more intricate. Don't forget about his activities. Some styles tend to wear better than others. Men who are avid rock climbers will not fare well with textured or diamond bands. Not only will dirt get trapped into the crevices of a textured band, but one nasty blow to a diamond band might loosen or crack the stones.

To know for certain what kind of ring your fiancé would like, take him with you and let him pick it out. That way, you'll ensure he's getting something he'll wear. Then once the wedding is over, all you'll have to worry about is reminding him to take it off when he's doing dirty work and occasionally snatching it from him to clean it.
